Author Update – November 1, 2017 Empower Your Life

Hello Beautiful Authors,

I am writing with an update for our beautiful and powerful book.

From your emails, I know that you are all quite busy with clients, business growth, family fun and projects, and well ... life!

We have been quite busy ourselves with the aftermath of Hurricane Irma. We had some water damage to our home and are unable to live there due to insurance delays; and now due to the delays, we have mold to contend with. Ugh. Luckily, we found a contractor who we believe will do a great job for us and are looking forward to starting the remediation and restoration very soon. In the meantime, we have a place to stay, feel more settled, and we are well.

So, what does this mean for our launch and timing?

Considering the upheaval and scattered focus of the past 6 weeks, we feel it is in the best interest for the intentions and goals for the book, to change the launch date to March 20th. This is the first day of Spring, the Equinox, and signifies new beginnings, birth, and a 'coming to life'. We feel that this is an ideal day for our launch!

Of course, as I mentioned in the last update, the most important reason for choosing the new date is to insure the success of the launch and Amazon Bestseller status. This means we must allow more time to attract additional authors. As of now, we have 15 authors and it is our intention to have at least 25 - 30 for the book. We also know that more authors in the book provides a broader reach and greater impact for each of you.
